Forecast For Northwest England
Issued by Met Office Exeter
at 1600 on Sunday 23 May 2021

++ Valid for broadcast between 1800 and 0600

Headline:
Rain, at times heavy through evening. Showers during Monday.

This Evening and Tonight:
Through the evening rain, at times heavy and gusty will gradually clear east from the region. Scattered showers follow behind and during the night with clear spells between. Minimum temperature 2 deg C (36 deg F).

Monday:
A largely dry start but scattered showers develop from the south into midday. Through afternoon, showers become locally heavy, perhaps thundery, with some sunny spells between. Turning clearer later. Maximum temperature 14 deg C (57 deg F).

Outlook for Tuesday to Thursday:
Sunny spells and scattered showers, locally heavy on Tuesday. Partly cloudy with the chance of scattered showers on Wednesday. Largely dry with sunny spells on Thursday. Temperatures gradually becoming warmer.

(C) Crown Copyright 2021. Published by the Met Office.